

Break Free

The "Break Free" project depicts the idea that the world is full of challenges and that at times we may feel like they just can't be overcome. But we must realize that any challenge that G-D gives us is only there to help us rise higher.

All of life's challenges are compared to water, just like water will help you float higher up after you disconnect from all holding you down, so too your challenges are only given to you because you can overcome them and use them to rise up above all of distractions in this world. The anvils in this image convey those struggles and distractions that weigh you down, but when you muster the strength to get over them you rise to unimaginable heights.